The data behind the bombing war in Europe animation at the IBCC exhibition

This data has been released by the IBCC Digital Archive for researchers to add to, check and correct.

The data was taken from published secondary sources and shows strategic bombing. Records of the RAF and USAAF bombing usually record the numbers of aircraft that took off rather than those that actually bombed, and often list the intended target rather than where bombs actually fell. The sources used for Luftwafffe, Regia Aeronautica, bombings and V weapon strikes often show where bombs actually fell rather than the intended targets.

Database right is an automatic right and protects databases against the unauthorised extraction and re-utilisation of the contents of the database. Database right lasts for 15 years from the making but, if published during this time, then the term is 15 years from publication.
