Sunday.

Dear Lew,

What about a letter? you promised to write as soon as I came back off leave, but so far I have received nothing, you lousy bastard.

Well, what sort of time did you have at Christmas? bloody awful I suppose, a few beers at the local, and a nice long talk with Ted, incidentally do you know we should have gone down and had tea with him, on the Sunday before I came back off leave, if he mentions anything about it to you, will you offer him my most humble apologies.

I had quite a good time at Christmas, in fact much better than I probably would have had at home, bags of wine, women and song, much more wine than anything else, I received quite a shock a few days after Christmas, when I received a bill from one of the local pubs, for a few dozen pint glasses, I can't remember smashing them, but I was in such a state I think it better to pay up and ask no questions, just in case something else comes to light.

Do you remember borrowing a pound from me, one night in the Grandpoint? no, I didn't think you did, well you bloody well did see, not that I'm asking in a police way for it back, I don't want you to get that impression at all, maybe I am prepared to give it you, a genuine case of brotherly love, but I should like to know what has happened to it, just in case the occasion should arise, when I have to approach you for a loan, I want to make sure I would be O.K.

How did Ted's wedding go? I sincerely hope I am managed to get a bottle of whiskey, personally I didn't see the point of having one bottle. I could drink the bloody lot myself and still be sober. Bet you rise to the occasion and make a wiz-o speech, I wouldn't be surprised if you made yourself look stupid, but all joking apart, miss you much but all the best for me.

Have you managed to get your seat yet? I am looking forward to spending some most enjoyable evenings during my next leave, when Pam and yourself are at the pictures.

Nothing more,

Cheers,

Ann.

P.S. Thanks for the Card.
