My Dear Mum,

I don't know whether I owe you a letter or Vice Versa, I think I owe you one because I got two from you within two days. Thank you very much for them, the second one was quite a surprise. ^{SUN} I didn't get the second one with Keith's address on it until Tuesday and I was on guard on Wed and duty but on Thursday so I didn't write to him I feel rather caddish ² about it really, I never seem to write to him, I get he takes a dim view of me as a brother. Could you possibly get me a Toothbrush as I have just about worn this one out, it's the same one that I bought in London when I was at F.C.R.C. so it's served its time. I always seem to be asking you to send me something but if you let me know how much these things cost I would rather send you the cash. You cant get anything round here; I went into Barry yesterday afternoon to get some things but all I was able to get was a bottle of ink and

(3)
this weird writing pad which was all that the only stationery in Barry had got. It's not much good really because you can't write very long letters in it. Are you still keeping your eyes open for some of that plain paper like you sent last time? I get more and more cheered off with our NAAFI. it's got absolutely nothing, not even a stamp. The course gets more and more difficult, you know, the Irish clergyman? he failed the other day, and before he actually gets thrown out he will have to go about on a lorry, loading & unloading sacks of spuds etc, like all the other failures do; tough isn't it? Well that's all there's been for so must dry up.

P.S. Is the watch done yet?

Love & love,

Pen xxxxxxxx
