My darling,
Just a line or so to let you know everything is alright. I arrived at Kings Cross at 7<sup>1/2</sup> and the train hadn't come in so I was able to get a nice corner seat. We left Kings Cross 15 minutes late but the train travelled at a fair pace and we were in York at 11.45, Bill had caught the earlier one and 2/

he met me at the station, our transport was waiting and we finally got to bed at 12:45.

This morning it looked as if all the Air Force had suddenly descended in Acapulco, there were about thirty bombs going up to see the Adjutant, so we dealt with them first, after a morning and afternoon of class we finally knocked off at six o'clock, thank Godmas we are getting rid of 200 this week.

I've just received those letters that you sent to Burn, not back eh!

3 only a month to travel about 15 miles!

It's been a lousy day today, just windy and raining hard the whole time, so we both settled down in our private residence, had a nice fire and the place doesn't seem so damp.

I collected your parcel O.K. from the station post office today, it had apparently arrived Friday night.

We have just received another assistant adjutant to replace the one that is being demobilized on Friday, they mean us to have a form for solo when we aren't so busy.

Well, my darling, this is about all at the moment, shall be writing again in a few days, don't think I can find time to write about ~~it~~ my day.

Hope the job is still O.K and your tea interval doesn't grow shorter (must have my rocks).

Remember me to Mum & Dad, hope the kids are better

All my love, dearest, take care of yourself
Your loving husband
