TODAY IS THE DAY: THE KING AND THE PREMIER WILL SPEAK

LONDON CROWDS 'SEE IN' THE OFFICIAL VE DAY

WHY CHURCHILL PUT IT OFF

STALIN, TRUMAN WERE NOT READY

Express Political Correspondent GUY EDEN

TODAY is VE Day; today the war in Europe is over. This was announced last night, although not until three o'clock this afternoon will Mr. Churchill tell Britain officially over the radio that the Allies have won this great fight. The whole of today and tomorrow are public holidays. At nine to-night the King will broadcast to the Empire.

This news—that Germany has capitulated wholly, absolutely and unconditionally to all three Allies—was expected yesterday. For hours all Britain waited on the edge of untiring

This was the reason for the delay, Mr. Chavchavil was prepared to make the announcement at its time yesterday. Purely technical considerations held it up. The official statement had to be co-ordinated with those from Washington and Moscow, and for reasons of their own both President Truman and Marshal Stalin waited till delivered until this afternoon.

It had been claimed that the Police Minister's announcement to the radio last night should be the official statement of the war's end. The husbands of dear from the other members of the Big Three joined the Chancellors in cheering the news, and an official announcement was made by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

THAT THE Ministry of Information was turned
THAT IT CHEAT THAT LINDY IN THE DAY.

EVERY ONE A PRISONER

Now that Germany has capitulated every single member of the German armed forces, from the highest to the lowest, is under the supervision of the British.
